

A Countryside Tale From The City

With tweed returning as a significant trend for winter, British heritage label, Butler Stewart shows how to 'do' tweed with a twist on a classic.

Styled along elegant lines, the Butler Stewart collection for men and women, adds a fresh, contemporary twist to this traditional fabric, synonymous with the countryside.

Jackets are tailored to flatter, with a cut that elongates the body on their three quarter length coats, and their collection of shorter length garments have an elegantly feminine silhouette that runs as a theme throughout the collection.

Pencil skirt hemlines skim the knee for the perfect length, and their growing collection of accessories make Butler Stewart the ultimate destination for tailoring and tweed.

The Butler Stewart Tania Coat is a longer length jacket, which is your perfect addition for autumn/winter. Whether it's work wear or wearing for pleasure, this exquisite garment skims the body for the perfect silhouette. This single breasted coat features flattering slanted side pockets with complementing trim, striking hot pink felt under collar and stitching to match on the four button cuff detail. Inside a flash of brilliance is courtesy of the fuchsia pink lining and inner security pocket. Created by British designer Anna Butler and made from the most exceptional quality British milled tweed, each garment is produced by their Savile Row experienced tailor for clothing you'll wear and enjoy for many more seasons to come.
